(Special from United Press.) attendance of members, and crowded House decided to meet hereafter at 11 every morning which is an hour earlier than usual. Payne then made a motion that the House resolve itself into a committee of the whole for the consideration of the tariff bill. Speaker Cannon designated Representative Olmstead, (Republican) as the presiding officer of the committee. Olmstead (Republican) as the presiding officer of the committee. Olmstead in gofficer of the committee. See the House recolve itself in stead recognized Payne and as the latter arcse to make his speech he was greeted with vigorous applause from his Republican colleagues.

Before the House met to-day Champ Clark, leader of the Democratic side, ar nounced that he had been willing to fore o general debate on the tariff bill and to devote all the time to considand to devote all the time to consideration of the bill by sections. The Republicans however, had insisted that there be a period of general debate.
"I do not think it worth while," said Payne, opening the debate, "to enter into academic discussion of the tariff question. The nearly by a great man question. The people by a great ma-jroity, favor protection to American industries. Some who secretly favor protection, say they favor a tariff for revenue. We have advanced some I do not believe there is any man within the sound of my voice who now would say that we should 'tear down every custom house from turret to fuondation stone." John C. Harvey of Stamford wrote obscene letters to President Tet which fell into the hands of the President's secretary. He turned them over to the United States postal authorities who arrested Harvey for the misuse of the malls. In the Stamford court he was bound over under ball of $2,000. At present he is enjoying the atmosphere of the North avenue jall.

It is thought that he is insane; When the McKinley bill was pass ed. Payne continued, there was too much revenue. Congress therefore took the duty on sugar and placed a bunnty of two cents a pound on sugar pro-duced in this country. In 1894 the Wilson bil! was passed. It was like a kaleidoscope protection in spots, free trade in spots and no schedule at all balanced. Revenue was badly needed phere of the North avenue jail.

It is thought that he is insane; when spoken to he is very rational and refined, but when a certain subject is touched upon his language is vile. A commission will be appointed to look into his sanity. Harvey wishes to be tried by a jury, and wants to act as his own counsel. and so a forty per cent, duty was placed on Sugar and the bounty was re-

The time has now come, declared Payne, when the country needs & protective measure and a revenue producer. He then produced records showing that the entire revenue reshowing that the entire revenue re-celved by the government under the operation of the Dingley Bill between July 1, 1897 and March 16, 1009, was $6,558,201,000. Payne declared that the large postal deficit had resulted from an increase in the rural free delivery service.

New York, March 22.—Former President Theodore Roosevelt came into town to-day, with a very busy program ahead of him which included inspecting his quarters on the steamer Hamburg on which he will leave for Naples to-morrow, seeing half a hundred callers by appointment at the offices of the Outlook and transacting some final business with his bro herlin-law. Douglas Robinson. He made the trip from Oyster Bay in the regular chair car accompanied by his daughter and son.

He was not molested and was met at the ferry dock by Mrs. Reb nson in her automobile. His first visit was at 334 East 22nd street where he called on Mrs. Mary Ledwith, the nurve who cared for all of the Roosevelt children and who wanted to see him before he into produced a surplus every year of the sexistence," he continued. "but we did not anticipate the expenses of the Spanish war when the Dingley Bill was passed. The Spanish war brought increased responsibilities and with them increased burdens. It brought increased expenses for the navy which seems to be about the most prougar thing among the people of the United States; increased expenditures for the army and increased tax lists."

Payne then discussed the reciprocity clause of the Wilson and Dingley Bills and declared that modern conditions demanded a minimum and maximum tariff. Under trade agreements, he said, this country hap been able to obtain good rates from other nations for its product but now the balance of trade was against the United States. "It is true that the Dingley Bil' has trade was against the United States. "When the Dingley Bill was enacted," he stated, "other nations adopted the maximum and minimum tariffs. Then came the tug of war. We say our rivals among nations getting the trade of the world. This has gone on until it has become almost intolerable. Already some of the nations have gven us the worst of it—given us the minimum."

He said he desired to change this but could not do it without re-opening the whole tariff question. He declared that business suffered to such an extent while a tariff bill is being discussed in Congress that he had been unwilling

BUSY IN BOROUGH Formal and complete show of Five Fires in Quick Succesmillinery and other spring merchandise commences A series of fires at Woodmont, the Wednesday the twenty-fourth.

Spring is really here. according to the story told by the calendar.

Spring is very plainly here, according to the store told so eloquently by the merchandise gathered in the store.

That merchandise is to have special opportunity to display itself to you for three days this week. Wednesday, Thursday and Friday are set apart as "opening days." These opening days are, first of all, devoted to the new millinery. The splendid hats that we have gathered from abroad, from best designers of America, and that have come from our own inspired workers;-these are given center of the stage.

But with them, we shall make special exhibition of the new costumes, of the new shoes, of the new hosiery and gloves, of the rich and beautiful fabrics; of all the new things for spring that have come to the store in such ed to the owners.
